‘Libra of the Vampire Princess’ Prefundia Debut!

XERO and MiKandi Japan Reach Out To Fans, Request Feedback, Strengthen Kickstarter!

TOKYO, JAPAN - "Libra of the Vampire Princess" is a brand new bishoujo game by Japanese visual novel studio XERO. In partnership with MiKandi Japan, they will soon launch a Kickstarter campaign to build an official English version of the game. The game has recently been Greenlit and will be available on Steam, provided the campaign is a success.

Starting this week, visual novel fans can catch a preview of “Libra” on Prefundia. The preview coincides with the Halloween weekend launch in Japan for the original version of the game.

“The Prefundia page for ‘Libra’ was created with the visual novel community in mind. We want to have them involved in some final decision making. Their feedback on rewards and stretch goals will be incredibly valuable. This move also gives us more time to grow the ‘Vampire Princess Army’, so that when we do launch on Kickstarter, we have the best chance for victory!”

— James, Project Manager MiKandi Japan

MiKandi Japan estimates that they need around 2,000 backers to reach their start goal on Kickstarter. People interested in supporting the campaign can sign up on Prefundia to get the Kickstarter launch announcement.
